lakes source of water in an arbitrary fashion. Experts in financing and experts in water engineering proposed both routes after considerable study. If the experts in the field don't know what they are talking about, should anyone pay attention to those who aren't experts?

So far as wells are concerned, certainly there's a chance Twin Falls could obmore than a chance based on the city's rather extensive experience with wells.

There's considerable risk in drilling wells for drinking water because no one can predict in advance the chemical content of the water. Furthermore, success of wells drilled on the south side of Snake river is rather spotty, to say the least. Boiled down to its essentials, the proforeseeable future.

The proposal to finance water system expansion with general obligation bonds assures that the people who use water will pay the bill in proportion to the amount of water they use. It avoids saddling the utilities and big property owners who are small water users with a bill that is not equitably theirs. These firms who own considerable real property are the same ones that provide many jobs in the community and contribute materially to the economy of the area. There's always the possibility that additional businesses or plants could be cate in Twin Falls, but they wouldn't be attracted to a community that wanted all symbol.

water election. Administrators and city commissioners of the city have spent four years studying the water problem and all its ramifications. There has been considerable discussion, including a good deal at open public meetings of the commission. Wide publicity has been given to the new work created, so that he can earn enough to pay the higher rent he will have to pay higher rent, why should he favor outsiders coming in to get paid well for doing the price of urban renewal work? Such are the questions that he considered along with the health of the price of urban renewal that he begiven a share in the new work created, so that he can earn enough to pay? every phase of the planning.
In the entire four years of planning, not one single person ever approached the city commission with any sort of proposal or suggestion about any phase of the project, including water source and financing.

With the water bond election only nine days away, it seems rather strange that a few residents suddenly would acquire so much knowledge about the city's water system and best means of financing in more with four years of planning? In the absence of any evidence to the contrary, it must be assumed they voice opposition merely for the sake of opposition of the water water was a suddivinal cores curves against water water. This sound military tactic is known as protecting purpose after remaining quiet for four years.

Plainly, Twin Falls has delayed improvement of its water system for too many years. Of paramount importance is a source of good water. It's remarkable that water from Blue lake's is still available to the city after all these years. Twin Falls cannot afford to pass up the opportunity of the city after all these years. Aides Dispute Balancing of State Funds

BOISE, May 8 (A) - A dispute BOISE, May 8 (A) — A dispute over whether special procedures will be needed to bring Idaho's general fund into balance at the end of the present blennium has broken out between Gov. Robert E. Smylle and State Auditor Jee Williams.

Both agree that significant gains in tax collections make it fairly certain the books will be in balance June 30, but Williams said if special steps are neces-sary the public should be told.

Smylie said the fund was bal-

Twin Falls Women Join Ranks of New Mothers To Be Honored Today

> By NORMA HERZINGER Women's Page Editor

"M" is for the million things she gave me," to quote an old song, "MOTHER." But, "O" no longer means she's growing old.

If you don't believe it, take a look at these six lovely mothers pictured with their new babies. These mothers represent the thousands of new mothers in our country who have joined the ranks of mother-hood just this past year.

The lives of today's mothers, according to work

The lives of today's mothers, according to work schedules and social standings, may be changed considerably from that of mothers 50 years ago, but the second Sunday in May remains a day well deserved by mothers, young and old alike.

The origin of Mother's day goes back to 1908, when Anna Jarvis, Philadelphia, Pa., wanted to honor her mother in some special way. It was Miss Jarvis' opinion that all mothers everywhere should be honored in some exceptional manner.

With this goal in mind, she worked many years, corresponding, traveling and making speeches for this dream that she was eventually to see become a reality. Miss Jarvis spent two years in Washington, D. C., explaining and constantly talking about her proposal, and, on May 8, 1914, President Wilson signed a joint resolution in congress, stating that the second Sunday in May each year should be devoted to mothers.

On this day, flags were to be displayed on all government buildings and the nation would pay tribute to all mothers.

The traditional carnation on Mother's day can be directly connected with Miss Jarvis, too. As history tells it, Miss Jarvis' mother took pride in a beautiful garden at her home and always grew some of the most elegant of flowers. Therefore, some years later Miss Jarvis chose a carnation in memory of her mother and the lovely flower garden.

According to a survey taken of the various florists, the carnation still is the most popular flower for Mother's day. Many mothers everywhere will receive a flowery hello with a carnation corsage, table centerpiece or dish garden arrangement of carnations and green plants.

But whether it's flowers, cards, a thoughtful gift or a much appreciated visit or family dinner, mothers of all ages will reign as queen on this special day designated for them.

Nonetheless, Lewiston was selected and the bout is scheduled for the youth center, a large cement-block building which will seat about 6,000.

Principally, the youth center is used for bingo, Saturday night dances, amateur boxing and a rare professional fight. The Bates college howkey team also plays at the center.

Lewiston, the first city in Maine to hold a title fight, is proud and happy over being chosen, but perhaps a little stunned, too. There hasn't been any convincing reason given for picking this place.

The promoters say the choice was made basically because of Lewiston's proximity to Boston—140 miles. But Portland is closer, and bigger. And Bangor, about 100 miles north, is about the same size and has a larger.

The report, made to White's division of accident prevention, said that despite all the fancy doo-dads, you have essentially the same design: high velocity, rotating mass, flying objects . . . and the operators have a false sense of security.

The report attributed this feeling of security to "the great advertising machine which gaves the public the idea that rotary mowers are safe.

They have worked hard to advance each boy and with quite a little success. There have been six second-class awards, one star award and one life award, with 63 merit badges.

The boys have had a good time and have participated in several activities within, the council and also in many unit activities. The latest unit sctivity took place last Oct. 6, when 19 boys left by bus on Friday afternoon and made camp near Easleys Hot. Springs north of KETCHUM.

The boys cooked their own meals, went swimming, hiking and participated in Scouting events planned by their leaders. They were accompanied by Simonton, and Jack Foreman, also a teacher at the school They returned to Gooding on Saturday evening.

A Brief Report from the

of Idaho Power Company held at Boise, May 5th

Growth of Idaho Power Company directly reflects the expanding economic activities of its customers throughout the Snake River Valley, and the progress has been remarkable!

Twenty years ago Idaho Power served area power needs abundantly with a system investment of less than $40 million. Today that investment has grown irtually the same geographic area --- to more than $370 million!

Electric system generating capacity, during the 20 years, has increased nearly ten times - from 109,255 to 1,044,700 kilowatts.

This growth is continuing - to keep well ahead of power needs within southern Idaho and eastern Oregon, Idaho Power plans to invest another $150 million during the next five years in new service binds your assurance that abundant low-cost electricity will never be too little or too late for constant area_progress.

The keystone to the power expansion program is the $70 million Hells Canyon project, now under construction. The river diversion tunnel has been drilled. Early this summer after high water has receded, the river will be routed around its normal channel, and work on the massive dam will commence.

Scheduled for completion in the spring of 1968, Hells Canyon will be producing power from its first generating unit in the fall of 1967. The 90-mile stretch of river will have been harnessed to furnish more than a million kilowatts of power, and for other beneficial purposes including flood control and downstream navigation. More power to the Snake River Valley - to its industries; farms, towns and homes!

For Idaho Power's five-year construction program, there's an estimated payroll of $45 million, and local purchases of materials and equipment in the range of $20 to $25 million. And the tax-paying investment will yield many millions to local, state and federal Domestic users of electricity on the Idaho Power system, on the average, have an electrical standard of living nearly double the national average. One good trason: national average rates for electricity used in the home are 32 per cent higher than those enjoyed by our customers.

Electric home heating in the Snake River Valley continues to increase. Last year approximately 25 per cent of the new homes taking service from our lines were all-electric, including heat. Rates for electric house heating have been reduced 28 per cent within the past two years.

Irrigation by electric pumping is bringing new land into production at a rate of nearly 50,000 acres per year, and the present season is no exception.

Company lines this year will deliver low-cost power for pumping to farms comprising nearly 800,000 acres. That total is about four times the size of the great Twin Falls southside project.

Idaho's phosphate industry has experienced tremendous growth. One processor explains: "In Idaho, we have unlimited phosphate reserves and a power rate as low as the tax-subsidized TVA rate in Tennessee."

The J. R. Simplot Company plant at Pocatello, started in 1944, has increased its capacity ten times in ten years, and is now expanding again to doubts existing capacity. It has become one of the largest phosphate fertilizer plants in the world.

FMC electric furnaces, also at Pocatello, have been enlarged. They now use up to 169,000 kilowatts of power, which is some 50% more power than Idaho Power's total system capacity 20 years ago.

A new 70,000 kilowatt furnace being installed by Monsanto at Soda Springs will be served in part by Idaho Power Company.

idaho Power Company is the state's largest taxpayer with 1964 taxes to local, state and federal governments amounting to approximately $16,000,000. This tax total represents about 32 cents out of each dollar of revenue received from its customers. 🗻

The people of the Snake River Valley live in a fortunate area which possesses natural resources yet un-tapped, where there are abundant opportunities and "elbow goom" for continued development.

Idaho Power anticipates further orderly economic growth for the area in the years ahead, and has . planned its expansion of power facilities accordingly.

But one of the great problems is the dependence of nearly all power mowers on the whirling blade principle. Even if a skirt attachment on the rear protects the operator of it the operator is riding atop the mower, there is the constant hazard to innocent bystanders. -

Until someone comes up with a safer design, however, even attention to basic safety rules would help, White said. Many of the 80,000 accidents last year occurred simply because someone got careless.

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT ...

The new junior college which will open this fall in Twin Falls is one of the nicest things that could ever happen to a community

That is the opinion of Robert P. Snyder, local businessman and active community worker, who added that no county in the state "needs it more than we do." You may not agree with me but I'm sure that the records will bear me out when I say that Twin Falls was on the verge of becoming a small instead of a big country town. We needed a ahot in the arm, and the junior college will provide it."

Treinen as the main celebrant.

This will be the first time that the concelebrated mass will ever have been held in Idaho and it will also mark the first—and possibly the last time or at least for many years—that six priests who are natives of Ireland are found working in Idaho at the same time. They all will be celebrating their golden jubilee in the priesthood at the same time.

Father O'Connor said he was "perfectly satisfied" with his other relatives, including brothers, who still live overseas.

Just three years ago the people of his parish in Buhl gave him a trip by air to Ireland as a present.

"I enjoyed every minute of the fight over and back and I enjoyed every minute of the fight over and back and I enjoyed every minute of the time I spent in Ireland," he said. "When I came back to Idaho it was just like coming back home, though, because this really is my home now."

Divorce Law Compromise Lively Topic

LONDON May 8 (P-Britain's top divorce judge has suggested a compromise to reak a dead-lock in divorce law reform—and stirred up a controversy.

Attempting to reach a middle ground between advocates of divorce-by-agreement and opponents of divorce. Sir Jocelyn Simon launched his proposals in Simon laun a speech to a gathering of law-yers. He is president of the di-vorce division of the high court. Burley Meet

He said divorce should be permitted by mutual consent. This means that if a man and wife mitted by mutual consent. This means that if a man and wife agree they can no longer go on living together, they a hould have a divorce. Just like that.

But, he said, and this is a big but: Married couples with young children should not be divorced under any obscumatances. He desfined young children as those under 16 or 17.

BURLEY, May 8 — Joseph Lambert, Burley postmaster, was guest speaker Thursday morning when the Oredit Women's Resort Workshop Hundreds of members of the Young Women's Christian association in the United States meeting was conducted by Mrs. Geraid Mabey, president. It was announced that two cars will be under 16 or 17.

British divorce laws of a generation ago made adultry the only ground admitted. It took author A. P. Herbert, then a member of the house of comauthor A. P. Herbert, then a minember of the house of commonns, almost a decade to persuade parliament to allow such grounds as incurable insanity. That was just before World war. The ZIP code is becoming important in cross-country mailing. By using the ZIP code, letters are sorted and sent direct to central stations. In this area to central stations, reformers have been trying to broaden the doctrine beyond its present basis of "mai-rimontal offense." Divorce law-yers and judges privately admit the ZIP codes in the United States. The Burley post-office has a master file of all in driver training are being county lighted.

that proving such an offense adulter, or cruelty—has become something of a charade. A week end in a hotel with a "Miss X" is common.

The entry of a British judge into such a controversy is virtually unprecedented. They rarely speak out on the laws they are charged with applying.

But divorce laws privately admit office has a master file of all the ZIP codes in the United States. But divorce lawyers are pri-vately concerned about proce-dures and some feel changes are necessary before the law falls into disrepute.

No member of parliament has yet formally proposed Sir Jocelyn's ideas as a bill. Leo Abse, a Labor member, has been trying to introduce divorce by consent for years but his bills have been should down under house of shouted down under house of commons procedure that permits such legislation to be stopped by a single member saying: "Ob-

The Daily Express emphasizing that Sir Jocelyn's views have been molded by years of listening to the tragedy of broken marriages, said: "What is the best interest of the child? Here is the interest of the child? Here is the erunch. Sir Jocelyn clearly an-swers—the child must be pro-tected by the parents sticking together.

This argument, however works both ways. For parents to part and wreck a child's stabil ity is dreadful. And to expose children to continued bitter do mestic discord — is that any

A question and answer period was held after Lambert spoke.

Guests were Mrs. Keith Galbraith, Rupert, and Mrs. Pat Emery and Lambert, both Bur-ley.

By the end of 1915, Russian, German, French and other countries' losses on the battlefield were enormous, but there was no accurate count of them. The British, who kept caroful—records, had 549,467 casualties of whom 128,138 were dead.

In all these nations, nearly a whole generation of young men was being wiped out. Some of the few survivors were to continue their existence as mutilated creatures who could never again lead full lives.

When the year drew to a close, 145 Allied divisions faced 100 German divisions along the Western Front. Despite their inferior numbers, the Germans were preparing to launch a tremendous assault on the French forts around Verdun. This appalling blood-bath was to be followed by the equally murderous battles of the Somme.

The idea of making a successful breakthrough still dominated the military mind.
Trained in obsolete tactics and bound by tradition to the strategy of past wars, it could not comprehend the simple fact that barbed

Hundreds of thousands of lives were being sacrificed to bring these old-line officers' education up to date.

One of them, Gen. Douglas Haig, replaced Gen. John French as head of the British ex-peditionary forces in December 1915.

A military historian who knew Haig said that the new commander was convinced that the decisive blow could be delivered only by cavalry—as it had been in the past. And that "of the newer arms Haig could grasp nothing because history could tell him nothing" about them. But this conventional horse-soldier was in a position to determine strategy in a in a position to determine strategy in a machine-dominated conflict.

Commanders who had enthusiastically adopted the new weapons; however, did not yet realize that they had limitations: When Gen. Falkenhayn planned the German assault on Verdun, he brought up enough heavy artillery to bombard the field so thoroughly that, in theory, no one would be alive there to resist his infantry advance. But there were plenty of French soldiers left to mow down his troops, which they did.

But what was being planned at head-quarters during the winter meant little to the men crouching in the trenches. They were mercifully spared from knowing anything about the horror that 1916 held in store. To them the war was already unceasing misery from which the hospital or the grave were the only escapes.

The bullet was no longer their chief enemy; far worse were rain, snow, dampness, cold and day after day of existence without hope. Only the blind, unthinking desire to survive kept them going.
